+ On my shooting stick, there is an elastic cord and a short rubber piece, and I don't know what they are for. Can you explain?

The narrow elastic cord is there so that if you remove the V top piece, it will not fall away and be lost. The thicker, shorter rubber piece is an extra strap you can place around the rifle when it is in the V top for added security. If you don't want to use either of these features, you can simply remove them.

+ Are broadheads legal in my state?

Broadhead regulations vary from state-to-state. Please consult your local hunting regulations before purchasing broadheads to make sure you are in compliance with local laws and regulations.

+ What is the warning label on my product?

At Allen Company, we want to arm you with information as you use our products, so we include warning labels on our products where applicable. The warning label(s) you may see on your products depend on the type of product. It could be a safety or instructional label to help you understand how or when to use your product. In other cases, you might see the Prop 65 warning label. This is a warning label that is required to be in compliance with the California Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act of 1986, also known as Proposition 65. Under that statute, any product that is sold in the State of California and contains a chemical that the State of California has determined causes cancer, birth defects, or other reproductive harm is required to carry such a label. The fact that one of our products carries this label does not mean it is unsafe. To the contrary, all of our products, when used as intended, are safe, and they all meet or exceed safety and performance industry standards. Nevertheless, some may contain small, some miniscule, amounts of a chemical that can be found on the State of California's Proposition 65 list.

+ What is your warranty?
